

FAMOUS DOCTORS GET FORDHAM DEGREES

TO CELEBRATE NEW COURSES

Those, Thus Honored Have Helped
Start the Study of Mental Disease
—Storer Absent Through Injury.

To celebrate the new era in scientific medical study in Fordham University, including the opening of the $200,000 building for the clinic recently established, and the inauguration of an extension course in the science of nervous and mental diseases, the university last night conferred five honorary degrees, two in absentia, on distinguished scientists who are participating in this new work. The ceremony took place in the Armory Hall of the university, in the presence of a number of distinguished guests and the Faculty.

The men honored with degrees are eminent specialists who have been delivering a series of lectures at the university. They are: Dr. Head, London; Dr. Horatio Robinson Storer, New York; Dr. Nicolas Achucarro, Madrid; Dr. Karl Jung, Zurich, Switzerland, who were made doctors of law, and Dr. Gordon Holmes, London, who was made a doctor of science.

The candidates were presented by Dean Walsh, and the degrees were conferred by the Rev. Dr. Thomas J. McCluskey, S. J., President of the university. In presenting the candidates Dr. Walsh said in part:

Dr. Nicolas Achucarro, who is the coadjutor of Ramon y Cajal of the Spanish University, has worked in Paris and Florence, and for a long time was the histopathologist of the Government Hospital for the Insane in Washington, D. C.

Other guests were Prof. Julius Hopkins, director of the Phipps Clinic, Baltimore; Prof. Charles K. Mills, University of Pennsylvania; Hugh T. Patrick, Chicago University; Prof. Frederick Peterson, Columbia University; Prof. Harry Cushing, Harvard; Dr. C. L. Dana, Cornell; Dr. Graeme Hammond, Post-Graduate Hospital; Dr. Theodore H. Janeway, Columbia; Dr. M. A. White, Superintendent of the Government Hospital, Washington, D. C., and Dr. B. Sachs, Mount Sinai and Bellevue Hospitals. To-night they will be the guests of the university at dinner in the Hotel Astor.
